At night he carried them to his residence where he kept them. Having no stamps at the time of the receipt of the check he held it for a few days. When he began to issue these stamps he found the check missing. Petty came here last Friday and steps were taken to prevent, if possible, a loss to any one. An indemnity bond signed by Collector Barnham, Chief Deputy State and Mr. Petty, was given to the bank to secure any loss should the check have been cashed at some other point, and another check issued. The matter has just been made public. There is no clue to the thief.

THE MINERS' CONFERENCE.

It Does Not Attract the Attention Warranted by Its Importance.

LONDON, May 26.—The international conference of miners which has been held this week at London, England, has attracted much less attention in the country than its importance deserved. England sent thirty delegates, including Burt, Pickard and other eminent trades-unions, while France, Belgium, Austria and Germany were also strongly represented. Burt, who is a member of the house of commons, made the opening speech, but he failed to dissuade the delegates from voting a resolution in favor of the legislative enactment of a strike law. The resolution calling for a universal miners' strike on May 1, 1890, was withdrawn in favor of a British amendment to take effect on the day of miners upon the subject before final decision. But it is a significant fact that several of Burt's colleagues strongly advocated a strike on the ground that by no means could the lot of coalfield miners be ameliorated. Socialists in this country profess to be encouraged at the result of the conference and the progress which they claim to have made among the trade unions. There is at present no tangible sign of such progress, but the trade unionists are energetically preparing for a struggle between the employers and moderate, which they now admit will occur at the Liverpool congress in September. The general committee of the body which helped to organize the great demonstration in Hyde Park on the 4th inst. met last night and settled the draft of the constitution of the new labor organization to be styled "Legal Electric and International Labor League." The leading spirits in the movement are socialists, but they have already obtained numerous adhesions from the ranks of untried laborers, who at present know little of and care less for socialism.

PROTECT THE SYSTEM FROM MALARIA.

It is possible to do this even in regions of country where miasm is most rife, and where the periodic fevers which it causes assume their most formidable types. The immense popularity of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is very largely attributable to the fact of its efficiency as a remedy for fevers and fever, bilious remittents, and as a preventive of the various forms of malarial disease. In those portions of the west and south where complaints of this nature prevail, and in the Tropics, it is particularly esteemed for the protective influence which it exerts; and it has been very widely adopted by the most scientific professional instructors, and comparatively ineffective alkaloids, sulphate of quinine. Physicians have not been among the last to concede its merits, and the most energetic professional instructors which it has received have added to the reputation it has obtained at home and abroad.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA CONTAINS NO HARMFUL INGREDIENTS, AND IS THE BEST BLOOD PURIFIER.

Found in the Bridge Ticket Boxes. All sorts of articles are dropped in the boxes. "Women give the most trouble in this regard," a gentleman remarked, "as they throw the first thing in the box that happens to come handy. They frequently drop their change and pocketbooks."

More elevated railroad tickets are thrown than any other article, but a collection of cardboard taken out of the boxes includes church tickets, a fourteen pound tea check, visiting cards, theatre tickets and checks, store and restaurant checks and one blank check, ballots, ferry tickets and any number of railroad tickets worth ten times as much as a bridge ticket.

In addition to the above mentioned articles a great many coins are thrown in the boxes. At the general ticket agent's office in Brooklyn there are two shot bags and a box filled with pennies which have been received in that manner. There is also a box filled with coins of a larger denomination, ranging from three cents to twenty-five cents in value, with an occasional half dollar. —New York News.

OUR CHICAGO LETTER.

John McGovern Tells How Chicago Is Preparing for the Fair of 1893.

(Special Correspondence.)

CHICAGO, April 26.—I may hope that the World's fair at Chicago will pique the curiosity of the nation. Granting that much, we at once enter upon an interesting realm of thought. Individually, we may be unable to see that a fair is an economical measure—that it will cheapen the cost of existence; how comes it, then, that collectively the American people have wanted a fair? In a multitude of counsel there is wisdom. Probably the fair will unify the country—connect together its races and settlements. In that large view which 60,000,000 people have, the exposition of 1893 may be a necessity rather than a luxury.

Again, the nation is suffering with brain fog. These Americans have lifted, and grunted, and sweated, and Nature herself stands as an idle worker, demanding to know why her children should put on themselves penalties which she herself imposes as a palliative to a specific. If you please, you may hold that man is a grown infant, crying with the vexation and vanity of life, rattle him your World's fair loudly, and he will cease to worry over either Henry George or Jay Gould.

With a national facility that the student of human affairs must admit, this stupendous spectacle of recreation is to center on the very hoibed of American social ferment. The city which seems to hold all the active social reformers—whether every striker travels—where each nation of the earth has planted its imperishable colony—the city where nervous, excitable, volatile, social human creatures walk and talk and write, and, alas! not this very city sets up the diversissement of a world's fair, the first of human attractions. Presto, the reformers, must they not see the fair first, and reform after?

On this line of reasoning the fair introduces the people one to another, and gives to the statu quo a guarantee of further peaceful existence. Chicago will soon be so deeply involved in the fate of 1893 that it will have no time to strike. That's that!

How has the outlook affected the city, so far? Is there a boom? Does the movement arise outside or within? Well, there is a great boom, the first great boom I have ever seen here, and I think the movement arises from the outside. The nation is looking full upon Chicago. The nation is expecting something prodigious of Chicago. It would be a solemn thing if the Lake City should evoke the censure or the pity of America. I guess Chicago feels that!

Five millions of stock have been subscribed by 28,000 contributors and payment of 2 per cent. exacted, so that $100,000 have been realized in cash. On this sum doubles the preliminary expenses were undertaken. Some forty subscribers, by purchasing large blocks of the stock, have elected themselves directors. I believe there are one or two of the forty-five directors who hold office not by their own contributions, but by the small holdings of many people. Thus Mark L. Crawford, a representative trade union man, is now a member of the directors. By signing a $1000 of stock Mr. Yerkes was able to elect both himself and his attorney, and it is said that his share of the stock was so large that, had he been a real stockholder, he could have seated a second attorney in the board. Mr. Yerkes controls the street cars, the four corners of the city and looks after the gas trust, which just now is laughing the law in its face. He has figured and still figures in front of the worst of our strikes.

The forty-five Chicagoans who pledged their money most liberally to secure the fair are men who may be trusted to note the colossal task which they have accepted. The city now begins to aesthetic. Broadwingian plans hang in our store windows. One architect has drawn a tent to cover 100 acres. Boats of wonders are on sale. The site question, so vexatious and under because the South Side was financially certain to seize it when the fair came, will soon bubble up, and then, after the town auditor shall have simmered down, the city and the native will pitch in to see that the fair is a success. Short time, but lots working at it! Building, too—and rapidly growing on the imagination.

JOHN MCGOVERN.

HOW TO USE A GUN.

Never drag a gun towards you. Never let the muzzle of your piece point at any person. Always carry your gun with the muzzle pointing away from you. When climbing a fence put your gun over first, after taking out both shells. Never be in a hurry with a gun, no matter what the apparent emergency, it is the delicate and cool sportsman that is quick and sure.

EVEN AFTER YOU HAVE LEARNED TO CONTROL YOUR NERVE YOU WILL FIND IT VERY HARD AT FIRST TO HIT YOUR BIRD, BECAUSE YOU WILL FORGET TO AIM AHEAD OF IT IF FLYING ACROSS YOUR LINE OF SIGHT, OR ABOVE IF RISING, OR BELOW IF FLYING DOWNWARD.

To aim a shotgun, lift the weapon with both hands, the right hand on the stock just below the trigger, the left supporting the barrels. Look with both eyes steadily at the object to be shot at, and at the same time bring the mid rib of the barrels straight into the line of vision of the right eye. Pull the trigger instantly.

Carry your gun on your shoulder with the muzzle elevated and the hammer down, save when you are expecting game to rise, then you may hold it as "ready," which is as follows: Cock both barrels, grasp the stock with the right hand, as in first, and sustain the barrels at an angle to the left hand, and in front of and across the breast, the breast held a little below the right elbow. This gives perfect freedom of action when the game rises.—Maurice Thompson in New York World.
